High School:

The Fall Play selection has changed from "12 Angry Jurors" to "Translations". Mr. Beaver just came back from Ireland with the European Classroom with a new idea. The guide for the trip was Paul McGlinchey, an accomplished Irish actor, who recommended the plays of Brian Friel. One of those was "Translations", a play set in northwest Ireland in the 1830's when Irish education was illegal, and relations between Britain and Ireland were simmering with resentment and frustration. New audition packets are available at the Receptionist's desk of the High School.

In Him,
